

Contributors

(Affiliations and titles are correct as of the time of the workshop.)

Phoak Kung (Chapter 1) is Vice President for Academic Affairs and Professor of Political Science at Mengly J. Quach University. He is doing his PhD in Political Economy at the University of Warwick in the United Kingdom. He has also been Senior Research Fellow at the Cambodian Institute for Cooperation and Peace since 2013. He used to be Visiting Fellow at the University of Oxford and Cornell University in 2013 and 2012 respectively. He obtained his Graduate Diploma of Public Administration and Master in Economic Policy at the Australian National University in Australia. He also earned his Bachelor Degree in Mechanical and Industrial Engineering at the Institute of Technology of Cambodia. He was previously Assistant Dean and Professor of Political Science in the Faculty of Social Sciences and International Relations at Paññāsāstra University of Cambodia. He was also Senior Lecturer at Limkokwing University of Creative Technology and the University of Cambodia. He has received a number of awards such as Harvard Yenching Doctoral Scholar, Cornell University Fellowship and the Australian Development Scholarship.

Iis Gindarsah (Chapter 2) is a Researcher in the Department of Politics and International Relations at the Centre for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS), Jakarta. He holds a Master's degree in Strategic Studies at the S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies, Nanyang Technological University (2010). He also earned a Master's degree on International Relations from the Faculty of Social and Political Sciences, University of Indonesia (2009). His research interests are military transformation, defense technological innovations, civil-military relations, and international security. His essays and commentaries on the subject have been published in edited volumes, peer-reviewed journal and media outlets—including Contemporary South East Asia, RSIS Commentaries, and The Jakarta Post.

Mohamed Jawhar Hassan (Chapter 3) was Chairman of ISIS Malaysia until 8 January 2015 when he retired from the position. Tan Sri Dato' Seri Mohamed Jawhar served with the government before he joined ISIS Malaysia as Deputy Director-General in May 1990. He eventually assumed the position of Chairman and Chief Executive. He is also Non-Executive Chairman, New Straits Times Press (Malaysia) Bhd; Member, Economic Council Working Group; Member; Advisory Board, Malaysian Anti-Corruption Commission; Distinguished Fellow, Institute of Diplomacy and Foreign Relations (IDFR); Distinguished Fellow, Malaysian Institute of Defence and Security (MiDAS); Fellow, Institute of Public Security of Malaysia (IPSOM), Ministry of Home Affairs; Board Member, Institute of Advanced Islamic Studies (IAIS); Member, Laureate Advisory Board, INTI International University and Colleges; Former Chairman, Malaysian National Committee of the Council for Security Cooperation in the Asia Pacific (CSCAP); and Board Member of Securities Commission Malaysia. He is also Malaysia's Representative as Expert and Eminent Person, ASEAN Regional Forum (ARF). Before joining ISIS, his positions in government included Director-General, Department of National Unity; Under-Secretary, Ministry of Home Affairs; Director (Analysis) Research Division, Prime Minister's Department; and Principal Assistant Secretary, National Security Council. He also served as Counselor in the Malaysian Embassies in Indonesia and Thailand.

Tin Maung Maung Than (Chapter 4), a Myanmar national, is a Senior Research Fellow at the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) Singapore where he is a member of its Regional Strategic and Political Studies Programme. He has a Masters in nuclear physics from the Rangoon Arts & Science University and a graduate diploma in economic planning from the Rangoon Institute of Economics, as well as a Ph.D. in politics from the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. Currently, he is a member of the International Institute for Strategic Studies (London) and the Association for Asian Studies (USA). He is the author of State Dominance in Myanmar: The Political Economy of Industrialization (Singapore: ISEAS, 2007) and his latest publication is a country chapter on "Myanmar," in Security Sector Reform and Democratization: A Comparative Perspective, (Geneva: Geneva Centre for the Democratic Control of Armed Forces, forthcoming). His research interests include: political economy of development, democratization and civil-military relations in developing countries, human security, nuclear proliferation, Myanmar politics, and economics.

Herman Joseph S. Kraft (Chapter 5) is the Executive Director of the Institute for Strategic and Development Studies (ISDS), Philippines, and an Associate Professor at the Department of Political Science at the University of the Philippines. He has worked on and published articles and book chapters on regional security and security issues involving the Philippines and Southeast Asia. His most recent publications include an edited book entitled Mainstreaming Human Security in ASEAN

Integration: Lessons Learned from MDGs Implementation in Southeast Asia Volume II (Quezon City: Institute for Strategic and Development Studies, 2012); “RtoP by increments: the AICHR and localizing the Responsibility to Protect in Southeast Asia,” The Pacific Review, Vol.25, No.1 (March 2012), pp.27-50; “Human Security in Southeast Asia: Changing Security Norms in ASEAN?” in Chantana Banpasirichote, Philippe Doneys, Mike Hayes, and Chandan Sengupta (eds.) Mainstreaming Human Security: Asian Perspectives (Bangkok: Chula Global Network, 2012), pp.16-29; and “Driving East Asian Regionalism: the Reconstruction of ASEAN’s Identity,” in Ralf Emmers (ed.) ASEAN and the Institutionalization of East Asia (Boulder: Routledge, 2012), pp.61-74.

Lam Peng Er (Chapter 6) is a Senior Research Fellow at the East Asian Institute, National University of Singapore. He was a Visiting Fellow at NIDS from December 2009-March 2010. He obtained his Ph.D. from Columbia University. His latest single-authored book is titled Japan’s Peace-building Diplomacy in Asia: Seeking a more active political role (New York and London: Routledge, 2009).

Thitinan Pongsudhirak (Chapter 7) is Director of the Institute of Security and International Studies (ISIS) and Associate Professor of International Political Economy at the Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn University. He has authored a host of articles, books, and book chapters on Thai politics, political economy, foreign policy, and media as well as ASEAN and East Asian security and economic cooperation. His award-winning Ph.D. was taken at the London School of Economics. A frequent analyst in the international media, his recent publications include: “Thailand’s Uneasy Passage,” Journal of Democracy (April-June 2012); “Thailand” in Ann Capling and Patrick Low (eds.), Governments, Non-State Actors and Trade Policy-Making (Cambridge, UK: Cambridge University Press, 2010); “Between Continuity and Change: Thailand’s Topsy-Turvy Foreign Policy Directions” in Global Asia. He serves on the editorial boards of several academic journals and has held visiting positions at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies and Stanford University.

Tran Truong Thuy (Chapter 8) is a research fellow and Director of the Center for South China Sea Studies, Diplomatic Academy of Vietnam (DAV). Before joining the DAV, he worked in the European Department at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Vietnam. His research interests are in security studies, maritime issues in Asia, and the international relations of Southeast Asia. He has written extensively on maritime issues and contributed several reports and policy recommendations on South China Sea issues.

You Ji (Chapter 9) is Professor of International Relations in the Department of Government and Public Administration at the University of Macau. He holds a Ph.D. and M.A. from the Australian National University and a B.A. from Peking University. Previously, he was a Reader in the School of Social Sciences at the University of New South Wales. His research focuses on China's political and economic reforms, elite politics, military modernization, and foreign policy. Dr. You is the author of three books, including China's Enterprise Reform (Routledge, 2013) and The Armed Forces of China (I.B. Tauris, 1999). He has also published numerous book chapters and articles in journals including Problems of Communism, International Journal of Korean Unification Studies, The China Journal, Pacific Review, Comparative Strategy, Asia Policy, Japanese Studies, Contemporary Southeast Asia, the Naval War College Review, Strategic Analysis, Journal of Contemporary China, and Contemporary Security Policy. He sits on the editorial board of eight academic journals including The China Journal, Issues and Studies, and Journal of Contemporary China.

Kiwako Tanaka (Chapter 10) is a Research Fellow of the National Institute for Defense Studies (NIDS), Ministry of Defense, Japan. Her main research interests include dual-use technology control, chemical and biological weapons control, arms transfer, conflict resolution and peace building. Prior to joining the NIDS, she served as an advisor to the Permanent Representation of Japan to the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) in the Hague from 2005 to 2008, to the Permanent Mission of Japan to the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva from 2009 to 2011, as well as to the Secretariat of the International Peace Cooperation Headquarters, Cabinet Office in Tokyo from 2011 to 2013. She obtained a Ph.D in Political Science from the International Christian University, Tokyo.