

CONTRIBUTORS (in chapter order)

---

Carolina G. Hernandez (Foreword) is Founding President and Chair, Board of Directors, Institute for Strategic and Development Studies (ISDS), Philippines. She is also Chair of the ASEAN-ISIS and Professor Emeritus of Political Science, University of the Philippines. She has served as the Advisor to the President of the Philippines. She holds a Ph.D. in Political Science from the State University of New York at Buffalo. Her research interests include: Regional security and foreign relations; the Military in politics; Democracy and development; and Philippine domestic politics and foreign policy.

See Seng Tan (Chapter 1) is Associate Professor at the S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies (RSIS), Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. He is concurrently Head of Research at the Institute of Defence and Strategic Studies (IDSS), a constitutive element of RSIS, and Coordinator of its Multilateralism and Regionalism Program. He holds Ph.D. from Arizona State University. His research interests include: critical social thought; international relations theory; multilateralism and regionalism; conflict management; and politics and security of the Asia-Pacific.

Joseph Chinyong Liow (Chapter 2) is Associate Dean and Associate Professor at the RSIS, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. He holds a Ph.D. from the London School of Economics. His research interests include: the international politics of Southeast Asia; political Islam in Southeast Asia; the domestic politics and foreign policies of Malaysia; and the Malay-Muslim community in Southern Thailand.

Chulacheeb Chinwanno (Chapter 3) is Vice Rector for International Affairs and Associate Professor at the Faculty of Political Science, Thammasat University, Thailand. He has been appointed from 2005-2006 as the Senior Expert of the Committee of Foreign Affairs, House of Representatives, Thailand. He received his Ph.D. in Political Science in 1980 from Stanford University. His research works concentrate on Thai foreign affairs, China and other major powers in Southeast Asia, and Asia-Pacific security issues.

Noel M. Morada (Chapter 4) is Professor of Political Science, University of the Philippines, Diliman. He was Distinguished Visiting Professor, Southeast Asian Studies Program, Johns Hopkins University in Washington, DC in Spring 2008. He holds a Ph.D. in Political Science from Northern Illinois University under a Fulbright scholarship. His research and publications include issues related to Philippine foreign policy and relations, ASEAN external relations, the ASEAN Regional Forum, international terrorism, and human security issues.

Rizal Sukma (Chapter 5) is Executive Director at the Centre for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS), Jakarta, Indonesia. He is also the Chairman of the International Relations Division, Central Executive Board of Muhammadiyah. He received his Ph.D. in international relations from the London School of Economics. His research interests include: Southeast Asian security issues; ASEAN; Indonesian defence and foreign policies; and domestic political change in Indonesia.

Tomotaka Shoji (Chapter 6) is Senior Research Fellow, Research Department, the National Institute for Defense Studies, Japan. He received his Ph.D. in international relations from the University of Tokyo. His research interests include: politics and security in Southeast Asia; Japan's Southeast Asia policy; and the contemporary history of Vietnam.

Jun Tsunekawa, (Editor, Introduction) is Deputy Director, Research Department, the National Institute for Defense Studies, Japan. He joined Japan External Trade Organization in 1974, where he conducted research on and studied the economic development of Southeast Asia. In 1998, he joined NIDS as a senior researcher. He specializes in development economics and Southeast Asian Affairs. He was an author and the editor-in-chief of the East Asian Strategic Review, an annual report by NIDS, from 2004 to 2007.

The National Institute for Defense Studies (NIDS), as the main policy research arm of the Ministry of Defense (MOD) of Japan, is dedicated to strategic studies of policy relevance. It also functions as a war college-level educational institution for senior uniformed officers of the Self-Defense Forces (SDF), civilian officials of MOD, and other branches of the government. In addition, NIDS serves as the largest military history research center in Japan.