

Contributors

---

Vannarith Chheang (Chapter 1) is currently a lecturer of Asia Pacific Studies at the University of Leeds and a senior fellow of the Cambodian Institute for Cooperation and Peace (CICP). He was former Executive Director of the CICP. He obtained his Ph.D (Asia Pacific Studies) from Ritsumeikan Asia Pacific University (Japan) in 2009. His research interests include international politics in the Asia Pacific and regionalism in Southeast Asia.

Iis Gindarsah (Chapter 2) is a Researcher in the Department of Politics and International Relations at the Centre for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS), Jakarta. He holds a Master degree on Strategic Studies at the S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies, Nanyang Technological University (2010). He also earned a Master degree on International Relations from the Faculty of Social and Political Sciences, University of Indonesia (2009). His research interests are military transformation, defense technological innovations, civil-military relations and international security. His essays and commentaries on the subject have been published in edited volumes, peer-reviewed journal and media outlets—including Contemporary South East Asia, RSIS Commentaries and The Jakarta Post.

Tang Siew Mun (Chapter 3) is Director of Foreign Policy and Security Studies at the Institute of Strategic and International Studies (ISIS), Malaysia. Prior to joining ISIS, he was a Senior Lecturer at Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia. His primary research interest is East Asia security and Japan's foreign relations. He holds a Ph.D. (2004) from Arizona State University in Political Science. He is a member of the International Studies Association and the Malaysian Social Science Association (PSSM). He also serves on the Executive Committee of the Malaysian Japanese Studies Association. Additionally, he is a regular guest speaker at the Institute of Diplomacy and Foreign Relations. He has contributed to numerous book chapters, in addition to national and international journals.

Tin Maung Maung Than (Chapter 4), a Myanmar national, is a Senior Research Fellow at the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (ISEAS) Singapore where he is a member of its Regional Strategic and Political Studies Programme. He has a Masters in nuclear physics from the Rangoon Arts & Science University and a graduate diploma in economic planning from the Rangoon Institute of Economics, as well as a Ph.D. in politics from the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. Currently, he is a member of the International Institute for Strategic Studies (London) and the Association for Asian Studies (USA). He is the author of State Dominance in Myanmar: The Political Economy of Industrialization (Singapore: ISEAS, 2007) and his latest publication is a country chapter on “Myanmar”, in Security Sector Reform and Democratization: A Comparative Perspective, (Geneva: Geneva Centre for the Democratic Control of Armed Forces, forthcoming). His research interests include: political economy of development, democratization and civil-military relations in developing countries, human security, nuclear proliferation, Myanmar politics and economics.

Herman Joseph S. Kraft (Chapter 5) is an Associate Professor at the Department of Political Science at the University of the Philippines. He has worked on and published articles and book chapters on regional security and security issues involving the Philippines and Southeast Asia. His most recent publications include an edited book entitled Mainstreaming Human Security in ASEAN Integration: Lessons Learned from MDGs Implementation in Southeast Asia Volume II (Quezon City: Institute for Strategic and Development Studies, 2012); “RtoP by increments: the AICHR and localizing the Responsibility to Protect in Southeast Asia,” The Pacific Review Vol. 25, No. 1 (March 2012): 27-50; “Human Security in Southeast Asia: Changing Security Norms in ASEAN?” in Chantana Banpasirichote, Philippe Doneys, Mike Hayes, and Chandan Sengupta, eds. Mainstreaming Human Security: Asian Perspectives, Bangkok, Thailand: Chula Global Network, 2012, pp. 16-29; and “Driving East Asian Regionalism: the Reconstruction of ASEAN’s Identity,” in Ralf Emmers, ed. ASEAN and the Institutionalization of East Asia, Boulder: Routledge, 2012, pp. 61-74.

Lam Peng Er (Chapter 6) is a Senior Research Fellow at the East Asian Institute, National University of Singapore. He was a Visiting Fellow at NIDS in December 2009-March 2010. He obtained his PhD from Columbia University. His latest single-authored book is titled Japan’s Peace-building Diplomacy in Asia: Seeking a more active political role (New York and London: Routledge, 2009).

Thitinan Pongsudhirak (Chapter 7) is Director of the Institute of Security and International Studies (ISIS) and Associate Professor of International Political Economy at the Faculty of Political Science, Chulalongkorn University. He has authored a host of articles, books and book chapters on Thai politics, political economy, foreign policy, and media as well as ASEAN and East Asian security and economic cooperation. His award-winning PhD was taken at the London School of Economics. A frequent analyst in the international media, his recent publications include: “Thailand’s Uneasy Passage”, Journal of Democracy, April-June 2012; “Thailand” in Ann Capling and Patrick Low (eds), Governments, Non-State Actors and Trade Policy-Making, Cambridge, UK: Cambridge University Press, 2010 “Between Continuity and Change: Thailand’s Topsy-Turvy Foreign Policy Directions” in Global Asia. He serves on the editorial boards of several academic journals and has held visiting positions at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies and Stanford University.

---

Tran Trunog Thuy (Chapter 8) is Director of the Center for South China Sea Studies, Diplomatic Academy of Vietnam.

Lieutenant General PK Singh (Chapter 9) was commissioned as a 2/Lt in the Indian Army in 1967. During a military career spanning 41 years he has seen active service in the Western, Northern and North Eastern Theatres and participated in the 1971 Indo-Pak War. He commanded a Mountain Brigade in active counter-insurgency operations where he was awarded the Ati Vishist Seva Medal, an Infantry Division (RAPID) during “Operation Parakram” and a Corps in the Western theatre. He was appointed C-in-C (Army Commander) in August 2006 and retired from active service in September 2008. He was Colonel Commandant of the Regiment of Artillery. His academic qualifications include M Sc and M Phil from the University of Madras and a Post Graduate Diploma in Business Management. He took over as Director of the United Service Institution, New Delhi (USI) on January 1, 2009.

Pervaiz Iqbal Cheema (Chapter 10) is Dean of Faculty of Contemporary Studies, National Defence University, Islamabad, Pakistan. Dr. Cheema has been a teacher and a researcher for more than 40 years both inside the country (Pakistan) as well as abroad (Australia, USA, Singapore & Germany). Dr. Cheema is also a scholar of international repute. His articles have regularly appeared both in National as well as International Academic Journals, Popular Magazines and daily Newspapers. He has published more than 130 research articles and over 650 other general articles/columns etc. In addition, Dr. Cheema has authored many books and monographs including, Conflict and Cooperation in the Indian Ocean: Pakistan's Interests and Choices, Pakistan's Defence Policy 1947-58, the Armed Forces of Pakistan, Dr. Cheema also co-authored many books including Perceptions, Politics and Security of South Asia, Four Crises and a Peace Process: American Engagement in South Asia. Dr. Cheema is a recipient of many scholarships and fellowships from various universities. Dr Cheema has also been awarded 'Pride of Performance' award by the President of Pakistan.

You Ji (Chapter 11) is Reader at School of Social Science, the University of New South Wales. He graduated from the Peking University and Australian National University. He is author of three books, including the Armed Forces of China, and numerous articles. His papers appear in journals such as the Problem of Communism, the International Journal of Korea Unification Studies, the China Journal, the Pacific Review, Comparative Strategy, Asia Policy, Japanese Studies, Contemporary Southeast Asia, the Naval War College Review, Strategic Analysis, Journal of Contemporary China, Contemporary Security Policy and Issues & Studies. His papers published in 2012 include "The Chinese Navy, its Regional Power and Global Reach", Strategic Analysis, Vol. 36, No. 3, 2012; "Decipher PLAAF Leadership Reshuffle", in Phillip Saunders and Dick Hallion (eds.), The PLA Air Force: Leadership, Structure and Capabilities, US National Defense University Press, 2012; "The PLAN's Gulf of Aden Mission as Capability Building against NTS Threats", in Lyle Goldstein (ed.), Chinese and American Approaches to Non-traditional Security: Implications for the Maritime Domain, US Naval War College Press, 2012; "Managing off-balance Tripartite Relations: How to Avoid Unnecessary Confrontation", in James Reilly and Jingdong Yuan (eds.), China-Australia Relations at 40: Learning from the Past, Facing the Future, University of New South Wales Press, 2012. You Ji is on the editorial board of the China Journal; Provincial China; East Asia Policy; Asian and Middle East Studies, Issue and Studies, Sociology and Criminology and Journal of Contemporary China.

Yasushi Sukegawa (Chapter 12) is a Senior Fellow at NIDS. Prior to joining NIDS, he served as a legislative staff member for a couple of government departments. He holds degrees from Tokyo University and Columbia University and has enrolled in a doctoral program at Oxford University.